Looking to refinance your adjustable rate mortgage to a fixed rate?

There will be more and more articles in the newspapers over the next 6 months telling you to refinance your ARM loans to a fixed rate. By that time fixed rates could be over 7%. Today's rates are still excellent so contact us to discuss your options. We offer a wide variety of programs including fixed, adjustable, interest only, and HELOCs.

Kramer Financial is pleased to be a partner with Access National Mortgage Company (ANM) to provide mortgage services to customers. One of two key factors to our client's satisfaction is that ANM represents 80 different lenders and they are in an excellent position to choose a lender with the lowest rate and closing costs. Second is our joint commitment to our customer's needs. If you are looking for personalized service from companies that can do business anywhere in the United States, contact us at:

News of the Week

DeafDigest wishes everyone Happy Holiday Season and may 2007 be great to all of us!

Eminent deaf individuals were profiled in the "Flashbacks" comic strip that appeared in Sunday edition of the Washington Post last weekend.

Such honored individuals were Konstantin Tsiolkovsky, famous Russian rocket scientist; Deaf Smith, who needs no introduction to all of us; Laura Bridgman, famous deaf-blind woman; and Eleanor Willhite, famous deaf pilot.

The first Gallaudet presidential protest (1988) was not documented in film, nor a movie made out of it. What about the second Gallaudet presidential protest (2006). Will it be documented on film?

Yes, if Colleen Goodhue, not deaf, has her way. She is a student at Ithaca College, Ithaca, NY and she has made the 2006 presidential protest her project. She has traveled to Gallaudet to film the protest activities.

The state of Arizona has filed a lawsuit against the Harkins Theaters chain for not showing captions on any of their 262 theaters scattered across the state.

A deaf attorney who tracks such captioning lawsuits said:

Any movie theater chain that shows just one open-captioned movie in the entire state is just begging to be sued. I'm glad that the Arizona Attorney General is enforcing the law, and I wish more of these suits would be brought because we're nowhere near where we should be in terms of movie theater captioning access.

Super Bowls come and go, and we annually complain that some of these flashy commercials (produced specifically for that big event) are not captioned.

There may be a twist, but in a certain way. Vanessa Rouse, Fayetteville, NC, is a semi-finalist in a contest titled "Pitch Your Idea for the Best NFL Super Bowl Commercial Ever. Seriously".

Her theme is "Something to touch people's hearts" and it involves a deaf boy watching football on TV until the mother taps him on the shoulder telling him it is time to go to the stadium to watch the Super Bowl game.

Rouse said children with special needs should go after their dreams, and cited Kenny Walker as an example.

If she wins, will her showing be captioned? Not sure, knowing Super Bowl's spotty record for featuring captioned commercicals.

Canada has what we, in the USA do not have - a video that shows how the political system works in their Senate (part of the Parliament).

The Canadian video is both available in American Sign Language and the Quebec Sign Language.

A BANK TELLER FEARFUL OF THE DEAF

Because of a bank robbery, where the robber handed in a note demanding money, the affected teller has become fearful of deaf patrons. That was what she told the U.S. Attorney when testifying to the robbery.

No, it was not that a deaf person robbed the bank, but because of the note.

When that teller is handed a note, she immediately associates it with a bank robbery, never mind that it is a law-abiding deaf patron that only wanted to conduct a bank transaction.

A shame the teller had to think that way.

A SECLUDED COMMUNITY IN MONTANA

There was a newspaper story of a Hutterite community located near Great Falls, Montana, which included a number of deaf residents.

Many of them have been isolated from the real world according to a representative of an organization that works with the disabled.

The Hutterite is a religious group whose roots go back to the 16th century in Europe.

Interesting about the community located near Great Falls because this is where the Montana School for the Deaf and Blind is located.

DEAF CRAB THEORY, NOT AS MODIFIED

We all know about this Deaf Crab Theory.

Now what is this all about a Deaf Crab

Theory, not as modified?

The Coconut Crab, or better known as the Robber Crab, is notorious for feeding on injured or unconscious people.

Whew! We do not maim our deaf people.

A CONSTRUCTION STORY: WHAT GOES AROUND COMES AROUND Deaf Folklorist Simon Carmel has many stories to regale us.

This is a true story. Two deaf people were working on a construction site in a South American nation.

One day, they were pulled off the site because of insurance concerns. At that time they were operating a steamroller. They were replaced by a hearing steamroller operator.

Yes, you guessed it - a steamroller accident killed that replacement hearing steamroller operator.

Asked Simon:

who s		_		_	е	ca:	nn	ot	-	WC	or]	k	in	d	an	ge	er	эu	s

This chain, which has nothing to do with a deaf dog, just filed for bankruptcy. Why? This chain could not compete against Starbucks which opened many outlets and kiosks near these Deaf Dog Coffee sites. Many DeafDigest subscribers loved the coffees served by Deaf Dog Coffee. DREW BREES USING THE SIGN FOR FOOTBALL Big time football quarterbacks, playing in noisy stadiums, often use hand signals to communicate with their teammates. In the game with Washington Redskins, New Orleans quarterback Drew Brees used a hand signal which, in ASL, meant the same as "football." Oh sure, Brees was not aware that his sign was the same as the ASL sign for football. Still it was an interesting coincidence. weekly DeafDigest Blue & Gold editions also posted at: http://www.deafdigest.com updated every Monday

TO ASK THE DEAF TO REPENT?

A new movie is "Call Me Salome", directed by Italian director Claudio Sestieri. This story is the latest adaptation of the Biblical story of Salome. It has been adapted so many times over two thousand years that it is easy to forget what the original plot was all about.

Anyway, in getting to the point, Giovanni, a sinister character, in the story, shouted for the deaf to repent.

Deaf people to repent their deafness? As if one feels sorry for their own deafness and seeks forgiveness?

Such a loose flexibility some movie directors create as far as deafness is concerned.

A CONTINUING DEAF EXPENSE

What is a continuing "deaf expense"? Someone quipped on a web site:

my hearing aid batteries come and go

This certainly is a continuing "deaf expense."

A LINE BY A DEAF COMEDIAN

Steve Day, who earns a living making people laugh, claims he is England's only deaf comedian.

He recently said:

I was driving while deaf

Not sure of this message Steve was trying to deliver to the audience.

The word "while" means a short period of time when something happened. So the deaf person happened to be deaf while driving deaf? Other times the deaf person drives while ?????????

Or is he simply trying to say hearing people drive while hearing and that deaf drivers drive while deaf?

Question of the week:

Q. Exactly what is Deaf Culture?

A. Definitions vary but the most common definition is personal identity as a deaf person and hanging around with friends, acquaintances and associates who are also deaf.

The late Larry Stewart, an eminent deaf psychologist, disagreed with the concept of deaf culture. In a 1992 letter he wrote to DeafDigest editor, a month before he passed away, he wrote:

I do not use "culture" to refer to social activities. I reserve "culture" for major influences. If we are to use culture to refer to social experiences, then USA has thousands and thousands of "cultures." Hence, it means nothing.

Wish List of the Week:

that Arizona will win the captioning lawsuit, and create a precedent for all American movie houses to follow

DeafHistory - Looking Back:

Year 1969 - Baltimore was no different from other American cities as far as the reluctance of deaf people in buying TTY machines. They just did not want to be stuck with bulky Model 19 machines with no one to call to.

Sheldon and Betsy Blumenthal, this popular Baltimore deaf couple, with two deaf daughters, broke the mold by becoming the first deaf city household to purchase a TTY machine. Friends followed suit and before everyone realized, Baltimore TTY network grew by leaps and bounds despite a 1-7 record in women's basketball, the 2006-2007 season is declared a success. New coach Kylan Loney, fresh from her NCAA-I basketball days at Arizona State University, has turned the program around with 12 players on the roster.

* Gallaudet sports -

This is a sharp contrast to last season when the women's roster numbered only six players at season's end and when only four women were available to play one game, risking a forfeit. At the very last minute just before game was to start, a 5th woman, herself a former player, volunteered to play, and the contest went on as scheduled.

* NTID sports - through Frank Kruppenbacher -

Deaf Athlete in the Spotlight

Ron Rice, who is deaf, was the first All-American in the history of Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) swimming, by placing in the 200-yard freestyle at the 1974-75 NCAA Championship. Rice repeated a year later as part of the 400-yard freestyle relay. He is the first of RIT's National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID) student athletes to earn All-American plaudits. The native of Warren, Mich. won 82 of 85 races during a brilliant career. Rice led the team in scoring all four seasons and was Most Valuable Swimmer four times.

He served as tri-captain in 1976-77. Rice also set nine school records. Equally impressive are his 16 world records and 12 Gold Medals at the World Games for the Deaf (now called Deaflympics). He was named World Deaf Athlete of the Year and American Athletic Association of the Deaf Athlete of the Year in 1973. Twice he was honored as NTID Male Athlete of the Year. In 2003 Ron Rice was inducted into RIT's Sports Hall of Fame.

* Residential school sports -

The Clerc Basketball Classic, to be hosted by Model Secondary School in January, will tell us which deaf basketball teams may be candidates for the Frat 2007 Deaf Basketball Teams of the Year

* Miscellaneous sports -

Brett Hanratty, age 30, is considered to be the key player on the all-hearing Ryton Rugby Football Club, which plays on the local Division One level in Great Britain

* Elite athletes -

former pro basketball player Kirsten Cummings, a veteran of many seasons of overseas play in women's pro circuits (with one year of play in the now defunct American Basketball Association) is still at it.

Still at it, but not in basketball, but in sailing races, holding her own greatly against seasoned professional racers off the shores of San Diego

* Collegiate sports -

Softball season is around the corner in the warm climate of Southern California. KC Robertson, a junior, is an All-American pitcher with the Point Loma Nazarene University softball team

* DeafSportsHistory -

Year 1974 - Andy Helm, 6'7 center with the Washington School for the Deaf basketball team, scored 55 points in one game. It is a record that still stands to this day among high school teams in the Clark County. Helm, by the way, played for many years in AAAD ball before retiring.
